D. Account of proceedings

Business enterprise and economic growth in the Central Asian and the Caucasian countries: creating a supportive and secure environment
(Agenda item 2)

18. This year's economic theme chosen for debate at the annual session was "Business enterprise and economic growth in the Central Asian and the Caucasian countries: creating a supportive and secure environment". The debate was divided into three sessions:

(i) Session I - General Review of progress and problems in the transition process since 1991: Mr. Michael Kaser (Professor, University of Birmingham) and Mr. Teimura A. Beridze (Chairman, Department of Statistics, Georgia) were discussion leaders in the section on the Caucasian Republics; Mr. Pradeep Mitra (Director for Poverty Reduction & Economic Management, Europe & Central Asia, World Bank) and Mr. Rafkat Hasanov (Senior Consultant (Fiscal Reform Project), Prime Minister's Office, Kyrgyzstan) led the discussion in the section on Central Asia.

(ii) Session II - Privatization, regulatory reform and enterprise development in Central Asian Republics and Caucasian Republics: Ms. Zhannat Zh. Ertlessova (Deputy Head of the Presidential Administration, Kazakhstan) and Rasim Hasanov (Director of the Centre for Economic Reforms, Azerbaijan) acted as discussion leaders.

(iii) Session III - Living standards and Social Policy: Ms. Munira Inoyatova (Secretary of State and Adviser to the President, Tajikistan) and Ms. Jane Falkingham (Director, ESRC SAGE Research Group, London School of Economics) led the discussion.

19. Following the discussion, the Chairman subsequently highlighted some of the main issues discussed during the debate. The Commission expressed its satisfaction with the debate on Central Asia and the South Caucasus, where countries are experiencing serious difficulties in the transition process. It underlined the priority needs of these regions and encouraged the Executive Secretary to strengthen assistance to these countries through regional and subregional cooperation, and in cooperation with other international institutions and organizations, in particular through the work of special programmes and projects for the South Caucasus and Central Asia, it being understood that appropriate resources should be made available. Support was expressed for the continuation of activities in relation to the Special Programme for the Economies of Central Asia (SPECA).

Reactions to the Spring Seminar and to the Debate of the First Day of the Session
(Agenda item 3)

20. The Commission expressed its appreciation of the quality of the Spring Seminar and of its complementarity with the debate of the first day of the Annual Session in addressing issues of sound economic development with particular relevance to economies in transition. It was suggested that the format of the first day debate could be more policy-oriented, taking advantage of a good mix of speakers including policy makers, academics and representatives of the business community and civil society.

21. There was considerable interest shown in discussion of ECE's operational activities, with particular attention devoted to assistance to the CIS countries, during a forthcoming ad hoc informal meeting. A joint statement by Armenia, Belarus, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Republic of Moldova, Russian Federation and Ukraine, was circulated. The Chairman proposed that the contents of the statement be discussed during the Ad Hoc Informal Meeting of the Commission devoted to ECE operational activities.

ECE Ministerial Conference on Ageing: Briefing by the State Secretary, Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth, Federal Republic of Germany
(Agenda item 4)

22. Mr. Peter Haupt, the German State Secretary for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth, gave a briefing on preparations and expectations for the ECE Ministerial Conference on Ageing, scheduled to be held in Berlin in September 2002. He stressed that the Conference offered unique opportunities for member States and civil society to work together to develop those socio-political measures that are necessary to meet the challenges of demographic change. A national and international discussion on ageing was needed and the UNECE had made the relevant decision to organize a conference to that end. The Berlin Conference would try to provide a regional implementation scheme for the plan developed by the UN Second World Assembly on Ageing to be held in Madrid in 2002. He conveyed an invitation from the German Minister for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth to Ministers of ECE member States to attend the Conference in Berlin and encouraged them to actively participate in the preparatory process.

23. A presentation was then given by a member of the State Secretary's team, Mr. Christoph Linzbach, Coordinator of International Affairs of the German Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth, who spoke on the linkages between the Berlin Conference with central UN initiatives of the last 20 years, global European ageing patterns and gave further details of preparations for the Ministerial Conference.

24. The Ambassador of Spain provided information on the status of the preparatory process for the World Assembly on Ageing to be held in Madrid in 2002, including the organization of an expert meeting in Burgos next September in preparation for the Berlin Conference. He appealed to the Commission to consider identifying activities that could be developed within the framework of a regional perspective for this event.

25. The Executive Secretary, on behalf the ECE secretariat, thanked the German Government for its cooperation and efforts as host country for the ECE Ministerial Conference. She also thanked the Governments of Austria and Spain for hosting two seminars in the process and the United Kingdom for financial support. She stressed that the Berlin preparatory process would provide the European region with the opportunity to contribute a meaningful input to global meeting to take place in Madrid in 2002.

26. The Chairman also thanked the German Government and underlined the Commission's commitment to actively participate in the various stages of the preparations for the Berlin Ministerial Conference.

Environment, energy and transport:
Strengthening links within the ECE region
(Agenda item 5)

27. The Commission considered this item on the basis of document E/ECE/1385. The discussion was led by members of a Round Table comprising the Executive Secretary, ECE Directors, the Chairpersons of ECE Principal Subsidiary Bodies (Committee for Trade, Industry and Enterprise Development, Committee on Environmental Policy, Committee on Human Settlements, Committee on Sustainable Energy, Conference of European Statisticians; Inland Transport Committee, Timber Committee) and the Vice-President, Committee on Economic Affairs and Development, Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe.

28. It was felt that, while intersectoral cooperation was very much needed for policy coherence, it did not occur spontaneously but needed planning and stimulation. For such cooperation to be successful, participation on an equal footing and with a right balance was required. The vast differences in the stages of development of the countries meant that preoccupation with national development problems in some countries prevented them from being sufficiently conscious of the need to address the negative impacts of sectoral activities through an intersectoral approach. Where value added was clearly seen, the willingness of organizational units participating in intersectoral cooperation could be counted upon. Intersectoral activities should be carefully planned so as to avoid overburdening the PSBs and affecting their core activities. Overcoming sectoral resistance to intersectoral approach was a long-term process which needed to be carried out in a constructive manner. To promote intersectoral cooperation further, it was felt useful to look to partners of all kinds, including the business community and civil society.

29. The importance of the role of ECE in promoting regional cooperation on intersectoral issues, given its areas of competence, which are at the heart of key intersectoral issues, as well as its specialized intergovernmental bodies involved in these issues, was underlined.

30. The need was stressed to provide a new impetus to the work on the follow-up to the Vienna and London Conferences by identifying a number of priority issues which, among the areas covered by the Programme of Joint Action (POJA) and the London Charter, correspond to the key challenges for sustainable transport, environment and health in the ECE region. The decisions and recommendations adopted at the High-level Meeting on Transport, Environment and Health were noted and the relevant PSBs invited to take them into account.

31. The quality of work carried out by all the PSBs within their sectoral areas of expertise was commended and full support expressed for the work already developed on intersectoral issues. In particular, interest was voiced for the initiative jointly agreed by the Committee on Environmental Policy and the Committee on Sustainable Energy to create the Task Force on guidelines on energy pricing which can greatly contribute to addressing the issues of energy market liberalization and harmonization of energy taxes.

32. Interest was expressed for the "Blue corridor" project as a way to promote environmentally friendly transport of goods in a major East-West pan-European corridor and because of its potential replication for other main arteries in Europe; the Committee on Sustainable Energy and the Inland Transport Committee should consider the feasibility of the project and report back to the Commission.

33. PSBs were invited to develop intersectoral linkages further in various areas, including: (a) border-crossing and trade facilitation work on customs standards and procedures; (b) development of land registration systems and promotion of real estate markets; (c) trade, timber and environment, for promoting trade of timber and timber products while ensuring a sustainable management of forests; (d) energy and transport, in particular environmental performance reviews and ECE environmental conventions as they pertain to the energy and transport sectors; and (e) consolidation of existing ECE databases in a multisectoral framework.

34. PSBs were requested to examine the most efficient, flexible and cost-effective modalities to address intersectoral issues such as those mentioned above. These may include: joint meetings of the PSBs or their bureaux; creation of a joint group of experts or task force under their auspices; delegation of one member of a PSB to a meeting of another PSB; specific projects jointly implemented and monitored; and the establishment of a web page to facilitate the sharing of information on developments in intersectoral cooperation.

35. PSBs were further requested to review annually the intersectoral cooperation already ongoing and to consider potential new issues for such cooperation to be subsequently brought to the attention of other concerned PSBs, with decision thereon to be taken by the Commission. It was stressed that regular programme review and evaluation, and the timely dissemination of the evaluation results to member States, were critical to maintain ECE's effectiveness.

36. PSBs were encouraged to find new ways to secure the means for implementing intersectoral activities, including setting aside regular resources and seeking extrabudgetary funding for these activities.

The Millennium Declaration: Challenges for Europe
(Agenda item 6)

37. The Commission held a Round Table discussion on the key policy concerns of the Millennium Declaration relevant to the ECE region: Peace, Security and Disarmament, Development and Poverty Eradication, Protecting our Common Environment, Human Rights, Democracy and Good Governance and Protecting the Vulnerable. It also discussed Strengthening the United Nations and the UNECE. The Commission considered this item on the basis of document E/ECE/1386.

38. The Commission welcomed the opportunity to discuss the objectives of the Millennium Declaration with a focus on the ECE region. The discussion focussed on identifying the most relevant economic and social objectives for ECE member States, on the progress already made and further efforts to achieve these objectives. Follow-up mechanisms to monitor this progress were also considered.

39. The Round Table discussion was divided into six segments comprising a lead speaker and discussants:

(i) Peace, Security and Disarmament: Ambassador Spomenka Cek of Croatia was the lead speaker. Mahmud Mamed-Kuliyev, Deputy Minister for Foreign Affairs of Azerbaijan and Ambassador Gunther Seibert of Germany acted as discussants;

(ii) Development and Poverty Eradication: Ambassador Amiran Kavadze of Georgia was the lead speaker. Ambassador Carlo Trojan, Head of the Permanent Delegation for the European Commission in Geneva; Ambassador Norbert Frick of Liechtenstein; and Dirk Jarré, Secretary-General of the German National Committee of the International Council on Social Welfare acted as discussants;

(iii) Protecting our Common Environment: Hugo von Meijenfeldt, Chairman of the ECE Committee on Environmental Policy was the discussion leader. Ambassador Pekka Huhtaniemi of Finland and Vladimir Mironovich, Counsellor of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Belarus acted as discussants;

(iv) Human Rights, Democracy and Good Governance: Mikko Elo, Vice President of the Committee on Economic Affairs and Development of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe was the lead speaker. Jakob Simonsen, Deputy Assistant Administrator and Deputy Regional Director of the Bureau of Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and Adrian Mara, Second Secretary of the Permanent Mission of Albania to the United Nations Office at Geneva acted as discussants;

(v) Protecting the Vulnerable: Ambassador Yaakov Levy of Israel was the lead speaker and Ambassador Kálmán Petöcz of Slovakia acted as discussant;

(vi) Strengthening the United Nations and in particular the UNECE: Ambassador Michael Bartolo of Malta addressed the role of the United Nations in implementing the Millennium Declaration and Danuta Hübner, Executive Secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe, discussed six areas where UNECE was strengthening its capacity to respond to the Declaration's objectives.

40. The Chairman observed that the discussion under this item had provided the Commission with an opportunity to discuss the objectives contained in the Millennium Declaration. It had heard from a mix of speakers from within and outside the United Nations. The discussion had reflected the variety of country situations and perspectives. The Chairman highlighted the main points that had emerged from the discussion.

41. The Chairman proposed eight means to assist ECE member countries in the implementation of the Millennium Declaration objectives and in monitoring progress made:

- The Commission, particularly at its annual meetings and Seminars, or through ad hoc initiatives, will periodically review progress made towards implementing the Millennium Declaration, as it is invited to do by the General Assembly. In addition, the Commission may wish to occasionally devote one of its seminars to one of the policy concerns of the Millennium Declaration, such as poverty, protecting the vulnerable, environmental protection, and socio-economic aspects of conflict prevention and peace-building;

- The ECE Principal Subsidiary Bodies will be invited to consider what contribution they can make to the implementation process, and how to integrate the Millennium Declaration concerns and objectives into their programmes of work;

- The Executive Bodies of ECE's Environmental Conventions will be invited to report to the Commission on progress made towards implementation of the objectives of the Millennium Declaration;

- In the framework of the follow-up of the Millennium Declaration, and taking into account Assembly Resolution 45/190, the Commission would consider the possibilities of participation in international efforts in the sphere of elimination of negative consequences of the Chernobyl disaster;

- A dialogue with the relevant stakeholders, i.e. non-governmental organizations, representatives of academia, business community, will be held to raise awareness and promote public-private partnership in support for the follow-up to the Millennium Declaration;

- Through inter-agency cooperation at the regional level the FCE will promote coordinated initiatives for joint follow-up to the Millennium Declaration;

- By comparing national experiences and disseminating best practices in monitoring of the implementation of the Millennium Declaration, implementation of these commitments will be facilitated, including through development of guidelines on the economic dimension of some of the areas of the Declaration, such as governance;

- Information sharing and better communication on the policies undertaken at the national and regional levels for implementing the Millennium Declaration will be promoted, using available tools and technologies with a view to stimulating the effectiveness of the peer dialogue and public awareness. This in particular could be used to encourage implementation of ECE's legal instruments.

ECE strategic directions
(Agenda item 7)

42. The Executive Secretary reported on an informal brainstorming open to all member States that had taken place on Wednesday, 9 May 2001, with the participation of the ECE Bureau, chairpersons of PSBs, the Executive Secretary and ECE Directors. All who took part felt it was very useful.

43. The first topic discussed at that meeting was how to meet the growing demands on ECE in an environment of zero growth budget. Various points were made about how to attract funding, including: that long-term projects were more attractive than requests for funding ad hoc activities; that the private sector was a possible source of financing to be tapped; and that it would be useful to circulate to member States and other potential donor agencies a list of projects for which funding was needed. A suggestion was made that the Commission might wish to consider the possibility of adopting a decision calling on donor countries to include ECE on their lists of eligible institutions for development assistance funding and that the decision could be further submitted to ECOSOC for endorsement. Some delegations supported the draft of the decision presented by the secretariat and noted that this proposal was timely and appropriate. Given the need for some other delegations to consult with capitals, it was decided to postpone a decision on this matter and to discuss it at a future ad hoc informal meeting.

44. The second topic considered was the need to strengthen overall policy coherence and communication in the ECE. It was suggested to establish a Steering Group made up of the ECE Bureau members, the PSB chairpersons, and the Executive Secretary, at which interested members could participate, which would meet in the context of the Annual Session and discuss and articulate the overall policy and direction. The results of discussion would be considered by the Commission. The Commission also decided to request the Group of Experts to continue its discussions on the strategic directions of the ECE.

45. A number of economies in transition of the ECE eastern region, namely Armenia, Belarus, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Republic of Moldova, Russian Federation and Ukraine, jointly emphasized the importance of active involvement of ECE in supporting the transition process to a market economy. To this end, they urged the Commission to strengthen its operational activities addressing the issues of economies in transition. These countries considered it to be necessary to strengthen fundraising activities in order to provide new extrabudgetary resources for operational activities and to improve the strategy planning and implementation of such activities accordingly.

Matters arising from the work of the subsidiary bodies requiring decision by, or meriting the attention of, the Commission
(Agenda item 8)

46. The Commission endorsed the decisions and recommendations adopted at the High Level Meeting on Transport, Environment and Health on 4 May 2001 contained in document E/ECE/1389.

47. The Commission's attention was drawn to four Conference Room papers that had been prepared for the session. They included papers on:

- Sustainable energy production and use;
- The policy challenges, monitoring social and development policies in the ECE region;
- Activities of ECE in support of the UN Initiative for Information and Communication Technology for Development; and
- HIV/AIDS epidemic in the ECE region.

48. The Executive Secretary recalled that the General Assembly had invited all UN entities, including the regional commissions, to be involved in the preparatory activities leading up to the Special Session on HIV/AIDS to be held in June 2001. She pointed out that although UNECE had not been involved in the process, it had prepared the latter Conference Room paper on HIV/AIDS Epidemic in the ECE Region in order to draw member States' attention to the European dimension of the problem. A representative of UN/AIDS addressed the Commission in this regard. He invited ECE member States to provide assistance and support for the Special Session.

Other business
(Agenda item 10)

49. The secretariat was requested to ensure that, for all ECE meetings, invitations to capital-based experts are copied to the missions in Geneva. It was also suggested that member States be provided regularly with information on extrabudgetary resources and their origin and use. In addition, the secretariat was invited to report on ECE activities in the Mediterranean region at the next annual session.

50. An issue raised requiring further consideration by the Commission was the involvement of member States in the drafting of decisions taken at the annual session. The question of languages of documents both for meetings and on ECE website was also raised.

Adoption of the Annual Report of the Commission
(Agenda item 11)

51. At its sixth meeting, on 11 May 2001, the Commission adopted its report covering the period from 6 May 2000 to 11 May 2001.
